Within the framework of the university-wide initiative “Research for Global Challenges”, Ca’ Foscari University of Venice is seeking applications to fill permanent, full-time positions in various fields. Eligible applicants must have been employed as permanent faculty members or research staff by a foreign university or research institute for at least three consecutive years by the time of the call deadline.

We seek individuals with a strong research commitment, an outstanding portfolio of international publications, and a proven teaching record in the field associated with the post. Experience in leading research groups, conducting/coordinating international projects, and a proven attitude to raise research funding are highly valued. Knowledge of the Italian language although considered a practical advantage, is not required. Fluency in written and spoken English is required. Regular duties include an annual teaching load of 90 to 120 class hours, corresponding to three to four courses (these are usually allocated so as to leave one free term for research work). Service for the Department includes mentoring students.

Available positions include:

Assistant (tenure track) or Associate Professor (tenured) in Cross Cultural Studies, Comparative Philosophy and Intercultural Dialogue

We encourage applications of candidates with a strong, innovative research agenda on ethics, intercultural dialogue, questions of tolerance and diversity. In everyday life, it is important to understand the systems of values and beliefs that regulate others’ behaviour, in the perspective of mutual respect and human dignity. Inter-cultural dialogue is needed to prevent new tensions in the encounter between cultures and religions that have different conceptions of the self, and therefore different understanding of intimacy, embodiment, private and public space. We seek candidates willing to develop their research on topics related to gender issues, inclusion and diversity in order to address the educational challenges of a globalized and increasingly multi-ethnic society.
