Academic Calendar

(calendario accademico)

The academic calendar includes administrative deadlines (enrollment periods, tuition fees payment, request to graduate, etc.), learning deadlines (lesson periods, exam sessions, graduation sessions, etc.) and university closures. For each academic year you can also view just the administrative deadlines. www.unive.it/calendar

Academic Year

(anno accademico)

An academic year (abbreviated a.y. or A.Y.) is the time period when university courses are taught and exams may be taken. It usually begins in September and ends in August/September of the following year (yet, for the last exam date of the courses taking place in the 2nd semester, the January/February session of the following academic year should also be considered). Each academic year is divided into two semesters, which, in their turn, can be divided into two periods. Each period lasts approximately a month and a half (5 weeks of lecture + 1 week of extra/rescheduled lectures). For detailed information on dates and deadlines of the academic year, please see the academic calendar on Ca' Foscari website. <http://www.unive.it/pag/20869/>

Accomodation > see Housing

Active Learning Centre

The Active Learning Centre offers to Master's degree students courses and laboratories that are studied to enhance student's competences and/or knowledge. Proposals of the Active Learning Centre vary in contents, laboratories or courses may focus on economics and finance, international relations, social studies or humanities and didactics. Laboratories intend to provide students with skills that can help them entering the labor market or develop specific competences.

www.unive.it/degreeprogrammes

Additional Learning Requirements

(Obbligo Formativo Aggiuntivo - OFA)

Admission to the Degree Programmes is subject to an evaluation of the individual educational background that each student must possess in order to profitably attend the selected programme. In case of a negative result of this evaluation, students are subject to the so-called Additional Learning Requirements (OFA) procedure. Additional Learning Requirements are not to be confused with admission requirements. Admission requirements are mandatory in order to enroll to Ca' Foscari University, whereas students who do not possess all the Additional Learning Requirements (OFA) can still enroll to Ca' Foscari University and eventually fill any gaps in their background through specific activities. The additional learning requirements do not affect either the number of university credits (CFUs) that students need to achieve during their educational programme or the grade point average. Indeed, testing of the OFAs does not produce any evaluation and once the debts are cleared, no university credits are acquired.

Admission requirements

(requisiti di accesso)

There are two types of admission to B.A./M.A. degree programmes: limited admission (in Italian, 'accesso programmato') and open admission (in Italian, 'accesso libero'). Depending on the admission criteria, there are Degree Programmes with limited places and Degree Programmes with unlimited places. Whereas in the former case admission is subject to a selection and to the inclusion in a list, in the latter case enrolment does not depend on any selection but occurs directly, subject to evaluation of the basic educational background required for each educational programme. Admission requirements mean school or academic qualifications, minimum skills and knowledge that each student must possess to enroll and to profitably follow a First or Second Cycle Degree Programme. These requirements, defined and published on the university website are to be checked before enrolment. Admission requirements are not to be confused with Additional Learning Requirements. Admission requirements are mandatory in order to enroll to Ca' Foscari University.

Admission procedure

(procedura di ammissione)

Admission to the degree programmes requires some qualifications. For the degree programmes with no admission test, enrolment is not restricted by a selection process but occurs directly subject to verification of the requisites for each course of studies. Students with an international diploma wishing to enroll at Ca' Foscari University are to undergo a preliminary evaluation of their qualifications on apply.unive.it. Please note that enrolment for NON-EU students residing outside Italy is subject to quotas. For further information on Admission Requirements, see Language requirements. www.unive.it/enrolment

APP

Ca' Foscari is the University official APP which allows you to use the main University Services in an easy and quick way. This APP is useful, for example, to see the academic calendar, enrollment status, withdrawal from examinations, the online libretto (Transcript), a calculation of the average score achieved, where University services (such as Departments, Library, Canteens) are located, and much more. The APP is available only in Italian language.

Exam

(esame)

For each university exam, students gain a certain number of university credits (in Italian CFU) and a qualitative evaluation (mark awarded on a 30-point scale or any pass/fail exam). The minimum passing mark is 18/30, and 30/30, with honor (cum laude), if any, is the best mark. At the end of each course students must take an exam which aims to assess their preparation and knowledge. In Italy is possible to try taking an exam up to 4 times. If a student fails 4 times, is to attend classes again. In Italy exams can be both written and oral, depending on the subject studied. Written exams can be structured differently, for instance they could include multiple choice-

A questions, open questions or exercises. In some cases exam can consist in two (or more) parts, written and oral. This is true for language exams but also for other subjects. In order to take an exam students should enroll online in the exam through their Personal Area. Before enrolling in the exam, the students are asked to answer to a questionnaire regarding the course. It is possible to enroll in the exam about 10 days before the exam date.

E When receiving the result of an exam, the student can accept it through their Personal Area. If they are not satisfied with the result, they are allowed to refuse it and try taking the exam again in the next examination period.

Exam Date (appello d'esame) and Exam Test (prova d'esame)

K Each university exam can be taken on different dates every Academic Year. Each course includes at least 4 different dates where the related exam can be taken. The dates of the various exams are grouped in specific times of year, called sessions.

M The main exam sessions are usually held in January/February, May/June and September. Moreover, for courses occurring in the first period of the 1st and 2nd semesters, exams can also be taken in November and March. For detailed information on exam sessions, please see the academic calendar on the university website.

R In order to gain the university credits (CFUs) related to each educational activity, students must pass an exam (or other form of evaluation). Tests may be written, oral or pass/fail assessments. The university credits gained when passing an exam do not replace the mark, on a 30-point scale: with 18/30 being the minimum passing mark and 30/30 the maximum, with possible honour (cum laude).

Examinations (sessione d'esami)

X The academic calendar is divided into 2 semesters, which are organized into 2 terms each. Courses may last one period (5 weeks + 1 for extra/rescheduled lessons, which is true for students of Humanities, Economics and Science areas) or one semester (14 weeks, for students of Languages and culture). Different examinations are scheduled during the academic year and each course includes at least 4 different dates in which the related exam can be taken.

D Students are allowed to take all the exam dates included in this calendar, with the exception of the exams concerning the language of the Bachelor's and Master's degree programs of the linguistic area, for which students will be required to choose one of the exam dates available in the exam session. The organization of the examinations depends on the course scheduling (that is the semester or term the course will take place).

F

Final Degree Exam (esame di laurea)

A At the end of a Degree Programme, in order to graduate, students are to write a thesis and pass a viva voce examination, during which a commission of University professors will evaluate the student's dissertation and preparation. The thesis is written with the support of a supervisor (relatore) and possibly with a co-supervisor (correlatore). To be admitted to the final degree exam you must have completed all your yearly studies or acquired all the credits required by your study plan (including additional credits). In order to submit your Request to Graduate you must not have more than 24 outstanding credits (excluding credits for the final exam and for internships/traineeships) unless you intend to graduate in the summer session: students graduating in the summer session must take the outstanding exams on the first exam date in that session.

www.unive.it/degree

Final Mark (voto di laurea)

The final mark can range from a minimum of 66/100 to a maximum of 110/110, with possible honors (cum laude).

Financial Aid Unit (Diritto allo studio)

G

Grading System (sistema di valutazione)

The activities conducted within the University include, throughout the academic year, one-on-one or group meetings with guidance operators, in order to acquire any necessary instruments to make an informed educational choice, find valuable and current information and gain insights in the educational objectives and job opportunities of the various Degree Programmes.

Another important appointment is the first-year student welcome meetings, which take place at the beginning of each academic year, in order to introduce students enrolling in the first year of a Degree Programme to the new environment, give them the chance to talk to the contact professors of the various Degree Programmes and illustrate the university services.
